Updating the firmware for your Android TV box is part blessing and part curse. On the one hand, firmware updates often give your Android box additional features or fix software bugs and help your device work better. On the other hand, it's often very difficult to find where to find the firmware for your particular box manufacturer. If you're having trouble finding the right firmware for your device, then you've come to the right place. This article was created as the ultimate guide to finding the right firmware for your Android TV box. Here we list over 30 different manufacturers and hundreds of TV boxes. Each one has links to take you directly to their official download pages. Enjoy! Android TV Box Firmware Downloads (By Manufacturer) Acemax Firmware Acemax is a Chinese company that began back in 2002. They produce a number of Android TV boxes that look to be rebranded boxes based on designs from other manufacturers. Their download center contains their latest firmware updates as well as links to download the AmLogic USB burning tool to install them on your TV box. In the past few years they've released several extremely popular TV box models including the BT3 and GT-King. However, Beelink uses their official forum to distribute the latest firmware updates, so it can be difficult to find the updates for specific boxes. You can find a link to the Tools Download Forum here. GT-KingGT-King PROGT1 MiniGT1 UltimateGS-King X Blaupunkt Firmware Blaupunkt is a German aftermarket stereo manufacturer and has been an OEM provider for Porsche, BMW, Mercedes, among many others. Even though it's not their usual line of business, they produced one Android TV box, the BATV7. They used to have a product page with a download section, but it has been removed for the BATV7. It appears that the model is no longer supported. Cloudnetgo Firmware Cloudnetgo was one of the first Android TV box manufacturers to include a hard drive in their devices instead of flash storage. As a result, they were able to offer one of the few TV boxes that could record TV as well. Their Service and Support page has links to download support documents and firmware. Dolamee Firmware Dolamee is a budget Android box manufacturer, however they do not appear to have an official website. Additionally, their three TV boxes (D5, D6 and D9) are all out of stock on both Geekbuying and Gearbest. DragonBox Firmware The Dragon Box was a popular fully-loaded Kodi-box that later bundled their service with BlendTV. The company shut their doors in 2019 and is no longer offering upgrades or support. Their website is still active and they do have a contact page. However, I was not able to get a response when I emailed. Egreat Firmware Egreat is an audio company that has five different models in their range. Unlike many of the other manufacturers on this list, they produce more "prosumer" devices like network media players. Their official website, including their support page, is now offline, with no replacement. Enybox Firmware Enybox is an original equipment manufacturer of Android TV boxes and mini-PC's, operating since 2005. They manufacture TV boxes using all three of the major chipsets (AmLogic, Rockchip and Allwinner). Their official support page has firmware and documentation for their entire product lineup. Geniatech Firmware Geniatech develops a wide range of devices including tablets, digital signage, healthcare equipment and, of course, Android TV boxes. Their website's products page lists available downloads by the model number, so it's easy to find firmware, product documentation and spec sheets. Additionally, they have a page dedicated to developers where you can download software development kits (SDK) for the different hardware components that they use. They were one of the first to have an all-metal case and connections for external hard drives in addition to their internal storage. They also have a Google-certified Android TV device. Their official support page has links to download firmware updates and product documentation. Hyfai Firmware Hyfai is a small electronics brand headquartered in Canada and manufacturing in China. They only have two Android TV boxes that are both based on older chipsets. Their support page includes information to download a firmware update as well as support information. Q28 Android 7.0QR6 Android 6.0 Justup Android 6.0 Justup company that makes a variety of small electronics products and computer peripherals. They have a couple of models of Android TV boxes, however they're all out of production according to their website. One of their boxes, the ASX has a firmware release that was updated in 2019. The Matricom G-Box was the first Android TV box that I ever saw, and boy did it make an impression. They continue to make Android TV boxes and accessories to this day. They have firmware and documentation for their entire model line on their support page. G-Box MX2G-Box QG-Box Q2G-Box Q3Matricom ArcOmniStick S8X Mecool Firmware Mecool makes several different versions of Android boxes including the KM1 which is a Google Certified TV box running Android TV. They have some firmware updates available on their website's official Software Updates page. MeCool KM1 Android TV 10MeCool KM3 Android 10MeCool KM7 S905Y4MeCool KM9 Pro Android 10 Minix Firmware I've owned sex different Minix Android TV boxes over the years and they've always been one of my go-to manufacturers. They started rolling out OTA (Over The Air) firmware updates as far back as 2016, so the update process should be quick and easy. Occasionally they do release firmware updates on their official forum and not directly through the OTA Update app. Minix Neo T5Minix Neo U22-XJMinix Neo U9-HMinix Neo U1Minix X8 MXQ Firmware MXQ was an entry level Android TV box that sold extremely well in many countries. However, their support after the sale was frustrating to many of their fans. At the time of this writing, their latest device is several years old and there is no official firmware support. Nagrace Firmware Nagrace is a general consumer electronics company manufacturing home security cameras and video conferencing equipment. Their last attempt at a streaming media player was back in 2017. Since the company has shifted their focus away from Android TV boxes, their devices are no longer supported. Nexbox Firmware Nexbox was a popular entry level Android TV box manufacturer in 2016/2017. Although there is no official firmware support, there are custom firmware updates available on Freaktab for the Nexbox A95X. ProBox Firmware The first ProBox came out right at the beginning of Android TV Stick's rise in popularity back in 2014. Over the next few years they released several other Android devices culminating with the ProBox Air. ProBox maintains a list of the latest firmware updates for their entire model line on their Support page. AirBoxAir PlusAirAVAProBox2 ZProBox EXProBox EX+ Qintex Firmware I'll admit that I'd never heard of Qintex Android TV boxes before. They were founded in 2015 and have developed several TV boxes and home theater products. Their Download page provides firmware updates for every model in their lineup. They do not have any firmware updates on their website. Sunchip Firmware Sunchip Technology has one of the widest ranges of products available. In addition to Android boxes, they also manufacture Windows mini-PC's, laptops, ultrabooks and Miracast streaming sticks. They offer downloads for many of their products, including firmware updates on their official Download Center. Sunvell Firmware Sunvell has a history of manufacturing really unique Android TV boxes. Whether it's their brushed aluminum cases or their multi-colored Lego-style design, they were always a center-point of the room. However, they have no official website and no user-forum for firmware updates. Tanix Firmware Tanix manufactures a complete line of Android TV boxes. They have a Firmware Downloads page that has updates for several of their most popular devices on their website. The Mi box was one of the first Android TV boxes to be sold in a mainstream retailer (Wal-Mart) in the United States. While they do not have an official download page, there is a great unofficial repository of Xiaomi firmware on Mifirm.net. Yundoo Firmware Yundoo is a small manufacturer that produced a handful of Android TV boxes. Their latest model, the Y8, came out several years ago and it looks like their official website has not been updated since late 2017. They have no download page and the link to their official support forum is broken. Zidoo Firmware Instead of the small TV boxes that most manufacturers produce, Zidoo focuses on media streamers that would fit in with your other home theater products. They have firmware and other utilities available for their entire model link on their official Download Center. UHD2000UHD3000Z1000Z1000 PROZ10Z10 PROZ9SX9SZ9XX10X20X20 PROX8
